

A Salt Water Kiss

S Furster 2011

In the failing light
Of a rainy day
In the almost night
A moonlit bay

She sits on the shore
Sheltered from the rain
Looking to the sea for
An answer to pain

She hears the cry
Of a gull done wrong
Lets the sea
Begin her song

Through the quiet mist
Over restless seas
The dark waves hiss
Along the quays

She listens all night
To the musical swell
The dreams of light
The seas foretell

She hears the cry
Of a gull done wrong
Lets the sea
Begin her song

I heard her cry
A girl done wrong
And then the sea
Became her song

She listens till dawn till
The sun and moon trade
Till the mist is gone
And the chorus fade

Back home she sings
Her answer this
A ships bell rings
A salt water kiss

She heard the cry
Of a gull done wrong
And let the sea
Begin her song

I heard her cry
A girl done wrong
And then the sea
Became her song
